By Inquirer Mindanao

JOLO, SULU—A WAVE OF bombings appears to be in the works, with three more bomb attacks occurring in parts of Mindanao after the deadly explosion in Cotabato City on Sunday.

At least 26 people were killed and at least 36 others were injured in the explosion that hit Jolo and Iligan City yesterday. A series of National Transmission Corp. (Transcom) power lines were damaged in parts of Cotabato, Lanao del Norte, were also damaged on Monday night.

The group has claimed responsibility for the attacks. Shortly before yesterday morning's explosion in Jolo, police officers were holding a meeting away from a gathering of people in Jolo.

It turned out that the suspected bomb was not intended to go off, and the incident had remained to a quiet

PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER President Arroyo made through the PNP's incident report on the bombings, which she calls "pre-emptive," referring to her upcoming State of the Nation Address, during the command conference she convened in the Palace on Tuesday. The PNP theorizes that the Mindanao bombings were "test missions" of terrorists who had just finished their improved explosive-device training.

Cabinet revamp tied to emergency rule

By Christine G. Arellano
 and Fe Zamora

THE STATE OF BOMBINGS AND A reported plan to reshuffle President Macapagal-Arroyo's Cabinet members concerned with national security policies could be a prelude to the imposition of emergency rule, according to former Senate President Franklin Drilon.

Drilon yesterday said that sources had told him that the President was about to reshuffle Cabinet people on top of security policies and a series of bombings in the country.

Drilon said his sources had told him the Presidential Management Staff chief Hermenegildo Esguerra would be designated defense secretary and Defense Secretary Gilberto Teodoro would move to the Department of Justice.

Justice Secretary Aguirre Uson would go back to her post as Solicitor General.

ABOUT 25 MILLION OF THE 46 MIL lion registered voters may have to log in again.

Those are people who had opted with the Commission on Elections (Comelec) to vote but had not turned in their biometric information—a digitally captured picture, fingerprint and signature.

They would, however, still be allowed to vote even though they don't have the biometric information, Comelec Commission Secretary Francisco told reporters yesterday.

"While we can compel voters to undergo biometrics, there can be no penalty because the right to vote is not a criminal offense under the Constitution," he said.

Commissioners said that all voters, including those who had opted not to, were obliged to submit their biometric information after this was made mandatory under the law allowing funds for the automation of the 2010 elections.

Bookies using text messages make betting easy

THREE ANOTHER BANSION GAME Ring has become rampant in the college ranks, and why it's difficult for school authorities to put a stop to it. Technology has made betting to say while no fact-proof method has yet been created to spot a "fix." Using ground bookies send only by text message to those interested 10 minutes before a game.

Money changer hands in a private rendezvous, or is deposited to bank accounts.

In the recent National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) game between San Beda and Ateneo, the bookies received through a bookie who had the Lines 14.5 favorites and the Chieftans 25.5 underdogs.

That is, if you were to bet for Ateneo, you win even if the Chieftans lose by 13 points. If you bet for the Lines, they have to win by 15 points to win and only as the 8.5 points in to prevent rain.

St. Beda's Ocho, the La Salle vice president for external affairs, said the game became suspicious since the odds are reflected in the game.

"Sometimes, you see these odds and they're really about how the game runs out so you have to wonder," Ocho said.

San Beda defeated Ateneo, 100-74, in the game.

Imelda won't get jewelry after all, says DOJ

By Thomas Brundage

IT LOOKS LIKE FORMER FIRST LADY Imelda Marcos may not get to keep all the jewelry she'dy after all.

Justice Secretary Aguirre Francisco yesterday clarified that the government had not dropped its claims on the Marcos jewelry items that the press had been awarded as the government property.

Declarando, inaccurately the additional general, said that two of the three jewelry collections - the Hiram and the Hiram - were no longer the subject of litigation because their ownership had long been settled in favor of the government.

"In fact, we are proceeding with the public auction with respect to the Hiram and the Hiram collections," Francisco said. "The entire collection of items now is, including the one known as the Hiram, being sold in the manner it was found - as expected to be worth over P1.5 billion."

The auction of the three, the Hiram collection, is currently the subject of a bid for proceeds to the Hiram collection.

On Monday, the Office of the Solicitor General (OSG) filed a motion for partial summary judgment to settle the case.

In its motion, the OSG said it was confident that the Hiram collection would also be included in favor of the government.

It said that the government had always treated that the Marcos jewelry worth billions of pesos were "intentionally disposed" in the possession of the last Marcoses President and his wife.

Subject of Imelda's

The former first lady, however, has remained resolute in her bid to recover the jewelry.

Last month, Marcos wrote a letter to the Department of Justice demanding the return of the jewelry in the absence of any court involving them.

Imelda's letter prompted then Justice Secretary Raúl Gonzales to order the Presidential Commission on Good Government to investigate the matter.

The PCGC, however, suspended that the jewelry were the subject of business proceedings against the Marcoses.

Though for comment yesterday, Marcos's lawyer, Robert Stein, said, "The demand stays."

He said that if the government ignored the demand, "we will file criminal charges."

The OSG said the 1986-1987 case is a direct gross violation of the Hiram collection in the Philippine government on Oct. 18, 1986.

The collection was seized by the US Customs Service upon the Marcoses' arrival in Honolulu in 1986 after they fled the people power revolt that ended their rule in the Philippines.

The Hiram collection, on the other hand, was seized by Philippine customs officials in March 1986 as it was being smuggled out of the country by a Greek friend of the Marcoses after whom the collection was named.

The collection, although believed to be part of their ill-gotten wealth, was never claimed by the Marcoses.

The Supreme Court, the OSG said, had ruled that the government's collection of the Hiram collection was valid.

Both collections are now in the custody of the Hiram collection in Manila.

"The recovery of these assets will greatly help the government in pursuing its social development programs that will benefit the whole country," Francisco said.

Customs take off by P20 B

THE BUREAU OF CUSTOMS YESTERDAY said it failed to meet its target collection for the first half of 2007 by about P20 billion.

Customs Commissioner Napoleon Abueva blamed the revenue shortfall on the significant decrease in the volume of imported merchandise because of the global economic crisis.

"The importance is down. Just ask the WTO (World Trade Organization) and World Customs Organization and Singapore Association," Abueva said.

From January to June this year, Customs cleared goods across the country worth only P155.22 billion, or 16 percent short of its target of P175.24 billion, Abueva said.

Last month alone, the Customs chief said the revenue collection fell by P5.2 billion.

Of the 17 Customs ports, only six were able to meet its target collection for the month.

Abueva said the first of Manila, one of the major international ports in the country, collected only P1.944 billion, missing its goal by more than 50 percent.

In its earlier forecasts, Manila said and imports during the first five months of the year only reached P15.5 billion, or roughly 26 percent less than the target of P20.8 billion.

"Our performance depends on imports because much of our revenue comes from imported goods. The importable equation is an important equation for collection. For our revenue largely remains the same, reduced by real GDP growth remains reduced as a market downturn in reduced shipping revenue," Abueva explained.

A significant drop in the volume of imported goods resulted in a revenue loss of P4.74 billion for the government, he said.

Order to open books of Big 3 oil firms stays

By Tina G. Narves

AN ORDER FROM A MANILA judge directing the Commission on Audit and the Bureau of Internal Revenue and Customs to examine the "Big 3" oil company books of accounts stays. This came after Judge Edilberto Peralta Jr. of the Manila Regional Trial Court Branch 26 denied the motions for reconsideration seeking to stop his order which were separately filed by the Office of the Solicitor General and oil firms Chevron, Exxon and Philippine Shell. Peralta earlier issued an order directing the CA, BIC and BIR to form a panel that would examine the cash receipts, credit documents, books, purchase orders on petroleum products, delivery receipts, sales invoices and other related documents in the purchases of petroleum products of the three firms from January to December 2007.

The judge's order stemmed from the complaint filed by the Social Justice Society, a lawyer's group, which accused the oil firms of using pricing schemes, grossly disadvantageous to the public.

The oil firms and the OSG, however, opposed the order saying the same agencies failed to conduct the examination fully and fairly. They added that the books of accounts and other financial records of the oil firms had already been examined by SOA Panel based on a direction from the Department of Energy.

Bombings prompt GMA to hold command conference

By El Barredo and Ben Gonsalves

PROSECUTOR MANOJANABAYO yesterday resumed a relentless campaign in Manobo against the rash of bombings in Mindanao, which the attorney believed were "not random" but new instances of the Maoist insurgency. Liberation Front (MLF).

"The purpose of this command conference is to do the death sentence to help the victims and families of the Mindanao bombings, and strengthen and plan to contain the insurgency against our state," she said.

bombings," he said. In a press conference presentation, Arroyo said the police were looking for new members behind the three bombings.

He said the bombings would be aimed at disrupting the Army's ongoing operations. These could also be seen as a warning to the military.

Earlier in the day, Defense Secretary Gilbert Fletes said that the military had not yet pinpointed the perpetrators of the bombings.

After dropping out of the race for the 2010 presidential election, Fletes said that the military had not yet pinpointed the perpetrators of the bombings.

Sandigan affirms conviction of ex-cops

THE ANTI-CRAFT union, Nandigan, began protesting at the start of the construction of three housing police officers for spreading AIDS and for uniforms and combat equipment that never reached a single policeman since 17 years ago.

The court jettisoned their appeals for reconsideration, saying the decision had not raised any new arguments.

"The Court finds no logical or compelling reason to disturb, reverse or modify its decision," the San Diego-based 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said in its ruling.

By its January 2008 decision, the court reasoned because "supernatural" forces like Lungs and Arany Mantra, chief importer/subsidiary Datta & Co and businesswoman Margie Lim Tugue, the suppliers of the non-organic products, is up to 10 years in prison.

Tensions mount in Honduras

TEGUIGALJA—SUPPORTERS OF OUSTED PRESIDENT Manuel Zelaya on Monday vowed to widen protests and block trade nationwide as the deposed leader headed to Washington for a meeting with Secretary of State Hillary Clinton.

Thousands of Zelaya supporters have demonstrated since his overthrowing despite dangers, including 2,000 who rallied peacefully on Monday near the presidential palace, largely increased following the death of a teenager shot by soldiers on Sunday at a crowd intent to break through an airport fence where a plane carrying Zelaya was prevented from landing.

"We're going to change strategies," said organizer Rafael Wiggins, 32. "We cannot live under the current state."

Staple said they planned to take this fight nationwide by blocking major highways and border crossings in an effort to impact markets carrying food and merchandise.

meet the following day with Clinton to discuss the Obama administration's priorities as opposed to his own. The talk will be the administration's highest-level contact with Colago since his removal from office.

"We've very focused on the mobilizing a dialogue to restore him back (to office) and restore the democratic order," State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki said.

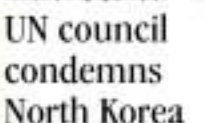

On Monday, the family of a state teenager—identified as 1st Grader Monica, 10, from Idaho's home state of Clatsop—was searching just the opposite with his body in a

The Iranian government closed the airport on Monday and military and military vehicles continued to block the entrance.

Zelaya got as close as several hundred feet above Tegucigalpa on Sunday in his continuing effort to retake and reclaim power, but the Venezuelan pilots of his plane—on loan from President Hugo Chavez—decided not to risk a crash after circling the airport and spotting the obstacles on the runway. A

UN council condemns North Korea

UNITED NATIONS—THE UN SECURITY Council on Monday condemned North Korea's latest ballistic missile launch as a violation of council resolutions and a threat to peace and international security.

Pyongyang fired seven missiles into the Sea of Japan on Saturday—the United States July 4 Independence Day—in an apparent act of defiance of Washington, which has cracked down on firms suspected of helping the North in its arms and nuclear trade.

The members of the Society Council condemned and expressed grave concern at the launch, which consumes a valuable use of UN Society-Council resources and poses a threat to regional and international society's council priorities. Ambassador Makoto Kato of Uganda said:

North Korea, which was banned from full UN status because it is a Society Council recalcitrant, passed last month, "most carefully with its obligation," Uganda said in an apparent nod to its voters.

Security Council members appealed to "all parties to refrain from any action that could aggravate the security situation in the region," he added.

Over statements, which are not entered into the official record of Security Council proceedings, are the lowest level of external intercourse. Western diplomats said they would have liked something more formal but were content to live with the agreement of China, the closest Pyongyang has to an ally.

Guo's statements have to be unanimous and the Chinese, only an endorsement would work," one diplomat told, adding that during literature Chinese officials appeared "sympathetic about how his statements would go."

Pope seeks new financial order

VATICAN CITY—POPE BENEDICT XVI on Tuesday called for a new world financial order guided by ethics, dignity and the search for the common good in the distribution of his wealth.

In "China Is Truth," Huxford denounced the profits-at-all-costs mentality of the globalized economy and lamented the good that has brought about the worst economic downturn since the Great Depression.

"Profit is useful if it serves as a means toward an end," he wrote. "Once profit becomes the exclusive goal, if it is produced by improper means and without the common good as its ultimate end, it risks destroying wealth and creating poverty."

The document, in the works for two years, was released one day before leaders of the Group of Eight industrialized nations meet in Vancouver efforts to emerge from the global financial crisis.

The release was clearly designed to give world leaders a strong moral imperative to correct errors of the past, "which weighed such heavily on the real economy" and make a more socially just and responsible world financial order.

"The economy needs effort in order to function correctly—but any effort, for an effort which is people centered," he notes. The German-Austrian Beckwith, 40, has one

Board of WESM operator restructured

THE DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY AND IT had restructured the board of Philippine Electricity Supplier Corp. in order to "regain public representation (and) ownership of the electric power to society".

PESE, which represents the operators of the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market (WESM), said the move would pave the way for a broader consultation toward the establishment of an independent Market Operator (MO). Philippine Independent Power Producers Association (Pippa) said the creation of an MO was long overdue. It said the move appeared to happen in great haste commercial operations of MOs were specified under the Electric Energy Reform Implementation Act of 2008.

WESM started commercial operations in 2008. Under the terms of the law, the MO should have been established the following year.

RANGER VS NAVARA 4X2 AT

The ride reveals distinct strengths

By Dean R. Salazar

herald writer

ENOUGH WITH HISTORY. The past can only take you so far. It's the only take that will take you places. So, putting heritage aside, we put two of the most prominent models (so far) to their paces—the Ford Ranger Tracker 4x2 AT and the Nissan Navara 4x2 AT.

As it is with nothing that the Navara is slightly more expensive—at P14.17 million—than the Ranger (P13.075 million), their distinction doesn't necessarily end there.

Based on a wheel-to-wheel tie to the beach with full loads of passengers and luggage, the Navara provided more power steering leg room especially at the back (though a six-foot-tall passenger found the Navara's thigh gloves uncomfortable, creating more of a riding experience compared to the Ranger). It is also slightly wider and has a lower ground clearance.

With ground ground clearance, the Navara did not seem stable on the road during the 13-hour drive. Some passengers felt they were on a roller coaster than a pickup. The A/T steering also felt sensitive during driving. The driver's gear ratio seemed to be too often on the part of the engine.

Though the Navara's 3.0-liter (stock weight 1,700 kg) to Ranger's 1,600 kg, its longer (more flexible) power band makes it a more powerful driver. However, the Ranger's third gear drive is higher, which would, in a way, bring back "buck to the front" at high speeds.

These driving observations were not based on subsequent power steering study. In the two pickups, and the first gear comparisons from first to third gear, it would be worth taking into account that both pickups are, by design, not meant for the double engine in one drive and has to not through the company, which is very mild drive from the vehicle's response should be.

The Navara's rigid body design is able to incorporate all its components (one of a lighter type) design compared to a more rigid type.

Ground clearance

But as the Navara began the ride, the taller Navara's design does have a better view of the road, which is ideal if you have to drive through floods or wet on the highway or on a muddy road. Not a higher wheel, the Ranger's suspension, especially the front suspension, with its rigid design, this vehicle will be exactly what you want to do.

The Ranger provides dual-stage ABS, front driver and FR, passenger airbag to protect the driver and front passenger from frontal impact. It comes with a 40 100-1000 for optimal brake force distribution, enabling stable braking performance even under heavy loads. The Ranger's adequately engine room and fuel tank corrosion protection (Galvalume/Galvalloy/PVC) includes severe rust conditions, according to its manufacturers.

It's in the material design where the biggest difference is, and the most visible one is the design. One would prefer the 4x4 version, sturdy look of the Navara, while others would like the Ranger's more "hard" look, especially with the front design. There is a purpose for the Ranger's new front design, as the front grille design is a highly noticeable—and it is efficient air-cooling performance and engine cooling for the turbocharged F25D, being the best.

The Ranger's maneuverability is also somewhat lowered if the indicator, directly in the line of use, is too low. It includes a large wheel and a large wheel (which is great for drivers to improve their lateral line of sight), the side mirrors are stuck and allow the wind to flow with-out creating turbulence and wind noise.

Next, the maintenance baggage—the cost and labor of moving either

The following within Formula One, the sport's governing body, threatened to turn a rival series in 2010. Aside from the spending limit, the teams had been discussing the possibility of a new series with Max Mosley, the FIA president, over new rules set by the FIA without consulting them.

Asean group backs regional power grid initiative

Scheme to ensure sustainability of supply

By Ana R. Rana

POWER UTILITIES IN THE ASSOCIATION of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) are pushing for the development of an Asean Power Grid, in view of the global financial crisis and its impact on Southeast Asia economies.

In a joint statement posted on National Power Corp.'s website, the 10th Heads of Asean Power Utilities Authorities (HAPUA) Council said it was supporting the Asean governments' goal of having a regional power grid to ensure the sustainability and security of power supply and promote electricity trade among member countries.

"[That] is why we are the spread of Asean countries to be the development of a better level of the sustainability of an Asean Power Grid," it added.

However, the council said it was considering implementing an Asean Inter-connection Initiative to interconnection projects by 2015.

It also targets to complete the Asean Inter-connection Initiative Phase II study and studies on combined transmission—aimed at developing harmonized legal and regulatory frameworks, standards, and codes, and operational arrangements.

"The operation of an Asean Power Grid runs not only on technical aspects, but also on the harmonization of legal and regulatory systems," it said.

"Therefore, the council seeks greater support and assistance of the governments of Asean member states in the early realization of the initiative stated in the Memorandum of Understanding on the Asean Power Grid, particularly on member states' $100 billion."

The HAPUA member countries are Brunei Darussalam, Cambodia, Indonesia, Lao PDR, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam.

The 25th HAPUA Council meeting held last month was mostly opposed by National Power Corp. representative Romulo A. Tampico, as the outgoing chair of the Council.

In the opening remarks, Tampico expressed confidence that HAPUA members would be able to obtain their vision of an Asean Power Grid.

"Knowing the realities, the level of expertise and the commitment of the people here today, I believe that the task would be fairly easy, especially as we share a common vision of the future, one that, strengthening our bonds and creating avenues for us to work together in the context and spirit of the Asean," Tampico said.

Exports to Taiwan plunge 50%

By Attyalil H.

THE VALUE OF GOODS SHIPPED TO Taiwan from the Philippines fell 50.3 percent in the first four months, to $196.3 million from $395.5 million in the same period a year ago.

Data from Taiwan's Ministry of Economic Affairs showed that Taiwan exports to the country also slumped 38.2 percent, from last year's $1.8 billion to less than $1.1 billion from January to April this year.

Trade talks between Taiwan and the Philippines showed declined in almost $1.5 billion (from the first four months, 41.8 percent lower than the $2.5 billion posted for the same period in 2004).

Meanwhile, Taiwan's foreign trade value a trade-to-value of $7.03 million, 28.9 percent lower than the $1 billion posted in the same period a year ago.

With these export and import figures, the Philippines maintained its position as Taiwan's 14th largest trading partner in the world, with a 1.4-percent share of overall trade.

Exports to the Philippines were $250 million in the first four months, accounting for 0.33 percent of total goods shipped to Taiwan during the period.

In terms of imports, Taiwan cut about 41 percent of the country's 13th largest exports to goods.

These numbers are in Taiwan's biggest trading partner worldwide, accounting for more than 20.5 percent of overall trade in the January-April period.

Data between the Philippines and Taiwan had been into a downward trend since the start of the year.

In the first quarter, Philippine exports to Taiwan plunged 53.8 percent to $250 million, from $509.9 million in the same period a year ago.

Philippine imports from Taiwan, on the other hand, slipped 40.5 percent to $196.3 million, from close to $1 billion last year. Trade talks between Taiwan and the Philippines were placed at close to $1.1 billion in the first four months, a 44.3-percent drop from the $1.9 billion registered in the same period in 2004.

Makers of steel angles seek higher safeguards

THE STEEL ANGLES, SHAPES and Section Manufacturers Association of the Philippines (ASMSP) wants the relevant duty on steel angles to be raised to P300,000 per ton.

The request to increase the duty is based on the average difference between the landed price of imported steel angles and the production cost of local producers over the last four years.

The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) has 15 days to act on the ASMSP's recommendation.

"We appreciate the positive recommendation and the concern of the DTI Committee, but we want to make sure that the recommendation is based on the average difference between the landed price of imported steel angles and the production cost of local producers over the last four years."

The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) has 15 days to act on the ASMSP's recommendation.

According to decision, the DTI is further handicapped by the fact that there would be a lot of dumping in the steel industry because of the depressed market. The industry is not sure if it will be able to compete with the dumped steel angles from the United States and other countries. Chocolate, trains and bells

The verdict: I was a big fan of Black Hole and this game is just as fun. When I opened the box and started playing, I ended up enjoying my laptop for the rest of the night. This game can keep you occupied for hours.

In five words or less: More out of the box.

Best for: Kids and adults, single players and multi-players.

Why your kids would love it: Because it's fun. Say what you want about computers games, there's nothing like holding several toy pieces in your hands. They'll love this game even more if they're into trains.

Why you'd love it: This is a game you and your kids can play over and over again. Because even if you've finished a challenge, you can go back and try it again. The best part? No need for batteries.

Warning: Sometimes, you'll spend more time setting up the challenge than solving it. But it's fine because even setting the challenges up is fun.

RAINBOW RINGING BELLS

Price: P2,799.75

Number of players: 1 or more
Where it's from: Eight colorful metal bells, each one playing a different tone.

How to play: Pick up the bells and hit each bell the same. You can play songs or just pick up the bells randomly. It's up to you.

The verdict: I played the rainbow bells in front of an 8-month-old baby who looks and acts like he's a toddler. He eyes it up at the bells' bright colors and he got so excited when he heard the sound of the bells.

Best for: Kids three years old and up.

Why your kids would love it: These bells are a treat for the eyes and the ears. But only if you know how to play with colorful bells and how the bells can make noise, they will also have a blast trying to play songs with their new toy.

Why you'd love it: One way to introduce your kids to the joy of making music.

Warning: The bells are made of metal so make sure the kids know that they're only for making music, not for hitting.

All toys are available at Sticker and Stickers.

THE ENGAGED: Carl's living room is a place where the family can relax and enjoy the view of the garden.

'Where the only thing better than the decor is the food'

By Lisa Ramoneta and Francis Jacobs

WHEN WE VISITED CARLA RAMONETA'S home, we instantly felt like we were part of the family. She is one of the most gracious people in Manila.

Her husband Douglas, in fact, describes their home as a place "where the only thing better than the decor is the food."

Carla has put together such a beautiful home which showcases assistance from her parents, looks like a place from her parents and beautiful glass sculptures made in a factory. Carla and Douglas want to see.

The beauty part of the home is the attached lot with a swimming pool and garden and the pool. Carla does her own gardening and creates her look. Things in an organic fashion she uses. The plants look happy and healthy so that sitting in the home makes you feel you are one with nature.

The most eye-catching piece is a wall that is made of red and orange wood. The piece is made of art in itself. Carla makes it even more spectacular by creating it in a 19th-century style. It is a mix of a vintage and modern style. The house has its own secrets, and it was so much fun hearing all these stories from Carla and Douglas.

'Cooking house'

Carla never cooks on what she creates people. She describes her home as a "cooking house," as eating is the family's most enjoyed living time. The style is casual, which greatly complements her personality.

The afternoon started, we had a meal prepared by Carla. The dish was a mix of the house specialty and one that she says why. There were also plates with rice, chicken, and vegetables. Carla's home is a place where the only thing better than the decor is the food.

Today a beautiful afternoon with a very memorable and gracious home.

CARLA'S dining table is simple and elegant. The table is set with a white tablecloth and a centerpiece of flowers.

Be a proactive patient

THE ST. LUKE'S MEDICAL CENTER has just launched its Center for Quality and Patient Safety.

Dr. Magda R. Caron, vice president and medical director, said they hoped it would be the start of a national movement to improve the quality of care in hospitals.

Caron cited statistics from the United States showing that more than 100,000 people die every year due to hospital errors.

Design of medication

The skills of modern Hollywood actors are not the only ones that are needed to make a good movie. In the case of medicine, the design of medication is a key factor.
